Las Vegas' TOP 100 WOMEN OF THE YEAR

MYVEGAS Magazine polled over 100,000 of our readers to find the 2019 Top 100 Women in Las Vegas. These women come highly recommended by our readers and our community! There's no shortage of fabulous females in the Las Vegas Valley, so ranking among the Top 100 Women of the Year is an extraordinary honor and a sought-after accolade. These women truly give their all - sacrificing time, energy and resources - to positively impact our community each and every day. Here at MYVEGAS, we are blessed with the privilege of providing our readers with fun and inspiring content, and the ability to recognize some stand-out women in this special feature issue. The leading ladies honored in this Top 100 Women of the Year issue make up a mere fraction of the incredible women in our city and, although we wish we could honor all of them, there are exponentially more than we had room to print. With that said, we are privileged to be able to credit these 100, very deserving, women.

Success through Strength: Proficient Patios

Jessica Lane and her husband, Matthew Lane, have the power and drive to move mountains together. Jessica, born in Cali, Colombia South America, moved to Las Vegas at the age of 4 after her father passed away. Together, they have owned and operated Proficient Patios since 2006. With Matthew having previous experience with construction and contracting from his family business and Jessica having great organization and educational strengths, there was a great foundation to blossom a new and different business. They started Proficient Patios out of their house, using Matthew's skills to run to appointments and complete jobs at first.

In the very beginning, Jessica was a freshman in college at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Jessica was pursuing a legal career and finished her Juris Doctorate at William S. Boyd Law School, after previously getting a bachelor's in Political Science. At the time, they saw that they could begin their own business and blossom with their own ideas in mind. She completed college with incredible grades, but never took her BAR exam because the business was booming. She became more involved in the business and realized that her inept skills for business and legalities would make her a strong, organizational asset to the team at Proficient. Her legal career was on hold, but her strengths were constantly put to good use.

While diving head-first into managing the team at Proficient Patios and still finishing up Law school, the couple were struck with devastating news. Their daughter, Brianna, was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer at just 4 years old. Named Neuroblastoma, the cancer affects children around the globe, and makes a catastrophe out of their nerve cells, causing tumors. Brianna was very brave and bared through treatments, while Jessica knew that her baby and her business were struggling. Feeling hopeless, Brianna was showing much improvement and was getting close to being cured. Jessica stated that, "they lost a lot of employees during this time," and she "didn't think they were going to make it." Today, she knows it made her much stronger and capable of getting through even the worst of times.

When their little girl was safe and healthy, they began to start improving and expanding their showroom and business. Within years, they had gone from their office space in Downtown LV to their 24,000 sq. ft. showroom in Central Las Vegas and had established themselves as the go-to for everyone's renovation and patio covering needs. They have won multiple awards, including #1 Las Vegas Patio Builder based on the Alumawood manufacturer, and Best of Las Vegas for Landscaping. Jessica and Matthew have found that their secret to success is providing consistently great customer service and understanding of customer needs while still offering them the best packages available. Unlike many contractors, all of her on-project estimators are also design consultants, meaning that they get further involved than what is expected. They take the needs of the client into consideration but guarantee that they will offer the best and greatest ideas for the space-period.

Proficient also holds 6 licenses to their business, so that they may do everything in-house without having to hire an outside source for any part of the job. They are a one-stop-shop for all things landscape and renovation, and everything is done in one go-around. After years of seeing many people's gas/electric needs with their landscaping projects, and while having to outsource to a different company, they made the smart choice to open up their own gas/electric company called 'Las Vegas Connects.' It is an independent company but tends to all of the landscaping projects for Proficient Patios, so that the entire renovation job is completed.

Jessica, alongside her husband, has dealt with thick and thin times, but somehow will always push through with full force. Her tenacity through dealing with her sick baby-girl, while still running a business, is beyond comprehension. She and her husband have become strong-willed and focused business people, and their business and family has grown with them. They now have 3 daughters, Karina, age 3, Catalina, age 2, and Brianna, who is now 11. Today, they are looking forward to the latest revamping of their showroom, and the growth and success that will come with it. Jessica also has the goal to take the Bar and chase her Legal dream.
